Friendly Advice to the Fair.

Written by a Gentleman of Salisbury,

BY WAY OF REPLY TO

“Trust not Man, for he'll deceive you.”

Tune — How imperfect is Expression!

~~~~~
TRUST to Man, that gen'rous creature ;
Prudent, noble, and sincere ;
Kind protector ! form'd by nature
Sweet assuager of your care.
Listen to a kind adviser ;
Treat him not with cold disdain ;
But, believe me, maids, 'tis wiser
To reward the faithful swain.

Lo ! the bird, at freedom ranging
Through the pathless fields of air,
With the various seasons changing,
Various ills oblig'd to bear !
But, when courting man's assistance,
Having liberty resign'd,
From each ill, now at a distance,
Does a sure protection find!
